

Killed On Visit To Mines With Father

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 25. (AP) — Many times 15-year-old Simon Albright Jr. of nearby Salisbury, Pa. pleaded with his father to take him to the coal mine where he works. Each time the father refused.

But yesterday Albright finally gave in. The youth, his eyes bright with curiosity, went into the Old Smokeless Mine near Boyton with his father.

The day's work was nearly over and young Albright was helping pick up the mine tools. A huge rock fell and crushed him to death.
