

Man drowns in limestone quarry

NEW CASTLE — An Ohio man drowned in an abandoned limestone quarry in Lawrence County, authorities said.

Charles Raymond Kolat of Youngstown was swimming with three companions in a quarry near Hillsville about 7:30 p.m. Sunday, state police in New Castle said.

Kolat's body was recovered by a local scuba diver shortly after 10 p.m., according to troopers.

The swimmers reportedly were headed for a diving rock when the drowning occurred.
