

1929 Jun George Martin drowns at quarry AL

Clipped By: usmra_rob Dec 15, 2024

 UP DRUWNED TUDTH started swimming across, easily, across. "Then he sort of jerked in the water and screamed. "Went Down Several Times" "He went up and down several times, but I couldn't do anything — there was no boat in the pond and I couldn't swim. "It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Mateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identified the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and througt Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were ent to the quarry pool recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the others were to bay. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. Acording to residents of the vichinty, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncovered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several ralload cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry find used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring water. When it was found impracticable to drain the quarry in the date of the quarry in the date of the quarry in the store was on a movement on the guardy proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming precideable drain the cuarty in the store of the drain the quarry in the drain the quarry in the diver in the same duary proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming precideable drain the cuert is sort. 	n	1.000 SEE RECOVERY	7
stated swimming across, easily, until he got more than half way across. "Then he sort of jerked in the water and screamed. "Went Down Several Times" "He went up and down several times, but I couldn't do anything -there was no boat in the pond and I couldn't swim. "It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Amateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- tied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- table to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming pred- ices which have a sheer drop of abut 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Tweng Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. The ther stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Big tears rolled down the is seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd d	n r-	OF DROWNED YOUTH	1
 "Then he sort of jerked in the water and screamed." "Went Down Several Times" "He went up and down several times, but I couldn't do anything — there was no boat in the pond and I couldn't swim. "It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." "Anateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grapping and drag hocks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identified the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were eent to the quarry from East Lake. Pifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the others white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vichnity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncovered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rallroad cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry instatomed. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming precipicas which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's surface. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the samed face of the father, and with tre	d ts	until he got more than half way
 Went Down Several Times' "He went up and down several times, but I couldn't do anything -there was no boat in the pond and I couldn't swim. "It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Amateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- tied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other yitims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. Acording to residents of the yicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. Akteksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming pred- ices which have a sheer drop of abut 200 feet to the water's sur- tace. The the stepped up and drew the dock, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sumbaked hillside. Big tears rolled down the is seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Sl	11	"Then he sort of jerked in the	9
there was no boat in the pond and I couldn't swim. "It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Amateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- tied the clothing as that worn by bis son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming pred- plece which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Noung Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to in the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the is seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	11 v-	'Went Down Several Times'	1
"It was awful the way he screamed and then he went down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Amateur divers worked throut the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identified the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and throut Thursday afternoon and throut Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. "If Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the others white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncovered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several railroad cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring water. When it was found impracticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming precipies which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's surface. There for the cuarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the smolet form the sheet over hields. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	a	-there was no boat in the pond	5 down and didn't come up anymore and I got scared and ran home." Amateur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hocks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- fied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were eent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vichinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- tidable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- ples which have a shear drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Nather Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry in father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the is seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	n	"It was awful the way he
Amaieur divers worked thruout the night while crews of men with grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- tied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. FIGH Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming pred- ices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- tace. Nather Sees Son As the body was brought to its ther stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s- samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.		down and didn't come up anymore grapping and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's body. Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- fied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Toyong Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- fices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Toung Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	r d	Amateur divers worked thruout	8
Clothing Tells Story The boy's clothing was found on the quarry bank by three other youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- tied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday afternoon and the same quarry pool recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- ficable to drain the quarry is abandoned. The duarty from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the is samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd drifted its w	-	grappling and drag hooks searched the deep waters for the youth's	4 youths, who reported their find to Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- field the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were eent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the victimity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to fi the hillide near the quarry in fi father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by the crowd drifted its w	0	Clothing Tells Story	1
Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, father of the drowned lad, identi- fied the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plese which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to In the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	0	the quarry bank by three other	1
lide the clothing as that worn by his son. Late Thursday afternoon and thruout Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews dragging the water and the divers. Boats were eent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to full the hillide near the quarry in fa father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by the crowd chilted is with thrembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	8	Tarrant City police. Dee Martin, throut Thursday night, hundreds of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews Boats were eent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to fi the hillide near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.		fied the clothing as that worn by of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews Bragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to In the hillside near the quarry in father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.		thruout Thursday night, hundreds	1 from East Lake. Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd drifted its w		of persons lined the banks of the quarry pool watching the crews Fifth Victim Young Martin is the fifth youth to drown in the same quary pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	dragging the water and the divers. Boats were cent to the quarry to drown in the same quarry pool in recent years. Two of the other victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the guard seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	Fifth Victim victims were negroes and the oth- ers white boys. The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming pred- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to I the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	to drown in the same quarry pool
The pool ranges in depth from 50 to 110 feet. According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- tieable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the sheet over his son's face.	1	victims were negroes and the oth-
According to residents of the vicinity, the rock quarry was abandoned when a blast uncov- ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the samed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	The pool ranges in depth from ered a large spring in one end. Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- ples which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the g seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	According to residents of the
Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail- road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Reverently the growd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the sheet over his son's face.		abandoned when a blast uncov-road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered with the rapidly rising water. A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to f the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.		Before workmen could remove them, residents say, several rail-
A blacksmith's shop, built into a cave on one side of the quarry and used by the workmen, was also submerged by the spring wa- ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes by there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	road cars, a "dinky" engine and a huge rock crusher were covered
ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to P the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd drifted its w	1	A blacksmith's shop, built into
ter. When it was found imprac- ticable to drain the quarry, it was abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to P the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd drifted its w		and used by the workmen, was	1 abandoned. The quarry proper is about 300 feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to P the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the gun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s seamed face of the father, and H with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowiy the crowd drifted its w	14	er, when it was found imprac-feet deep, its walls forming preci- plees which have a sheer drop of about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w		abandoned.
about 200 feet to the water's sur- face. Young Martin's body was taken in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and h with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face.	1	eet deep, its walls forming preci- pices which have a sheer drop of in charge by Vice. Father Sees Son As the body was brought to the hillside near the quarry his father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	12	about 200 feet to the water's sur-	1
As the body was brought to a the hillside near the quarry his hill father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the s seamed face of the father, and with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	i	n charge by Vice.
father stepped up and drew the covering from the small face. Reverently the crowd held back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and h with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w		As the body was brought to	n back, and men removed their hats. For a full five minutes b there was not a movement on the sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the seamed face of the father, and h with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	11	ather stepped up and drew the	10 there was not a movement on the q sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the g seamed face of the father, and h with trembling hands he replaced 4 the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	t.	Reverently the crowd held	- sun-baked hillside. Big tears rolled down the g seamed face of the father, and h with trembling hands he replaced the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	t	here was not a movement on the	Ċ.
with trembling hands he replaced 4 the sheet over his son's face. Slowly the crowd drifted its w	S	un-baked hillside.	0 8
Slowly the crowd drifted its w	N	eamed face of the father, and rith trembling hands he replaced	14
		Slowly the crowd drifted its	ч several ways. And the father trudged over e the hill toward the neat little $		And the father trudged over	e white cottage in East Tarrant	W	hite cottage in East Tarrant	1 from her son.

1929 Jun George Martin drowns at quarry AL

Clipped By: usmra_rob Dec 15, 2024