

Lost in a Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 27.—James Hogan, a driver boy, got lost in a big mine at Nanticoke. He walked four miles through the long galleries. Several times he fell to the ground from exhaustion, and was immediately attacked by rats, which congregate in large numbers in the mines. With great difficulty he fought them off. He was rescued early in the morning.

1893 driver boy James Hogan rescued after being lost in a mine

Clipped By:

usmra_rob
Sun, Jul 18, 2021