

Joe Leiter's Mine on Fire.

Joseph Leiter's mine at Zeigler is on fire, and so far efforts to check the blaze have been futile. All the men escaped, but were compelled to abandon the mules to their fate. This is the most complete mining property in the state, and its destruction would mean a loss of more than a million dollars. It has for two years been operated by nonunion labor, being the only one in the district so run. The mine has been sealed to put out the fire and a new shaft will be started at once.
