

Entombed Miner Rescued.

Shenandoah, Pa., Feb. 26.—Entombed by a sudden rush of coal at Draper colliery, Peter Burfosky, a miner, had a thrilling experience before he was released after several hours of hard work. An alarm was sounded when it was found Burfosky was a prisoner in his chamber behind tons of rock and coal and he was taken from his perilous position in an exhausted condition due to his efforts to release himself.
