

MINER, TRAPPED 3 HOURS, SAVED

Andrew Kakley, 65, a miner employed at Oneida by the Maurie F. Coal Company, was trapped behind a fall of coal and rock in the No. 13 east slope of No. 1 Colliery at Oneida about 5:30 yesterday afternoon. He was rescued three hours later, apparently none-the-worse for his experience.

He was working with John Polegra and Steve Roble, both of whom were able to crawl to safety through an air hole. Their exit, however, which was on a steep pitch, was too much for the older member of the trio to navigate.

It was after 8 o'clock last night when Kakley was rescued by Andrew Mehalick.
