

VICTIM IS CRUSHED IN MINE SHAFT

Miner Pinned Beneath
50 Tons Of Gil-
sonite At Mine

ROOSEVELT, Utah, Feb. 10 (U.P.)—Roy Campbell, 43, was killed and two others, one of them Campbell's son, were rescued after being entombed for six hours in a mine cave-in here late yesterday.

Campbell was crushed between 50 tons of gilsonite. He was working 800 feet underground in one of the mine's deepest shafts. Campbell's son, Darwell, and Everett Pope, another workman, started to his rescue when they were cut off and trapped by a second cave-in.

Rescued Last Night—

Rescuers reached young Darwell and Pope at 7 o'clock last night, six hours after the slide. The pair had been able to breathe through the rocks, they said.

Campbell's body was not recovered until after his son and fellow workman were rescued.

The cave-in was the first serious accident in the history of the Parriette mine, principal gilsonite producer in the United States, according to C. J. Neal, mine manager.
