

TWIN SHAFT DISASTER.

Bodies of the Sixty Victims Will Never Again be Seen.

WILKESBARRE (Pa.), Aug. 14.—The bodies of the sixty victims of the Twin Shaft disaster will never again be seen, as it has been announced that work will be stopped at the ill-fated mine. Superintendent Law said that some weeks ago he invited the General Managers of the different mine companies in this neighborhood to visit the mine. After inspecting the mine thoroughly Mr. Law requested each to write a private letter informing him of his views about the case, and the advisability of continuing to search for the bodies of the entombed men. Each one did as requested, and, while the writers differ about the cause of the cave in, all informed Mr. Law that they considered further excavation unnecessary and extremely dangerous.
