

TRAPPED MINER SAVED

Cave-In Kills Second Worker

PLACERVILLE, Aug. 18.—Rescue crews late today freed one of two men trapped beneath tons of rock by a strange cave-in at the Gopher-Boulder gold mine near Holden, thirteen miles west of here, and worked desperately to recover the body of the other.

Completely buried beneath the rock slide, Harry Achzig of Sacramento, was found dead, but crews had not been able to release his body from the tons of debris in which it had been trapped.

Frank Libby, also of Sacramento, freed after several hours of heroic labor, was reported only slightly injured.

The accident occurred early this afternoon, when a big tractor operating on the surface crashed into some old workings, precipitating a shower of giant boulders into the open cut in which the two miners were working.

George Frazier of Fair Oaks, driver of the tractor, suffered a slight leg injury clambering over rocks to the entrapped men.

Headed by Coroner A. J. Orelli of El Dorado County, the rescue workers labored in short shifts, taking turns at swinging the heavy sledges which were their only weapon in the attack upon the wall of rock.

The San Francisco Examiner, August 19, 1937